Key Topics

The Schlieffen Plan and Stalemate

- The Schlieffen Plan was a German plan to avoid the heavily defended French border and capture Paris by going through Belgium. The plan was to defeat France in 6 weeks before the Russian army mobilised.
- The Belgian forces held up the German army which gave time for Britain to get involved. This led to a stalemate as both armies began to dig trenches.

Key Battles: Verdun and the Somme

- The Battle of Verdun was a 10 month battle between the German and French armies. The Germans began the war of attrition. Around 360,000 German and 340,000 French soldiers died.
- The Battle of the Somme lasted for 5 months and began with a 7 day bombardment of German trenches. In total, there were around 500,000 British casualties, 430,000 French and 600,000 German.

The War at Sea—U-Boats and the Blockade

- The U-Boat campaign were repeated German attacks on the British Navy and trade ships. In 1915, German U-Boats sank the RMS Lusitania. This tactic was heavily criticised by countries not fighting in the war as innocent people were being attacked.
- The British blockade of Germany began in 1914 and ended in 1919. The idea was to stop the amount of food and supplies entering Germany by sea.

The Spring Offensive and the Hundred Days Campaign

- In March 1918 the Germans launched the Spring Offensive – a huge last-ditch attack. The Germans pushed deep into France and began to attack Paris with artillery. However, the offensive failed as the German Army had no supplies.
- The Hundred Days Campaign was the Allied attack which ended the First World War. German forces were pushed back into Germany.
